After capturing Gates' supply wagons, Tarleton pursues the routed Americans to Hanging Rock.

General Johann DeKalb, with a small group of troops from Maryland and Delaware, makes a determined stand, but he is mortally wounded.

American troops under General Horatio Gates approach Camden on the Waxhaws Road.

General Gates, fleeing in the first wave of retreating troops, rides 60 miles all the way back to Charlotte Town, North Carolina. On Dec. 3rd he is replaced by General Nathanael Greene, as Commander for the Southern Department.

American troops under General Gates are surprised when they meet the vanguard of Lord Charles Cornwallis’ army, and form into a line of battle.

A determined British bayonet charge causes the untrained militia to retreat, many without firing a shot.

Troop Movements:
- British
  - First Phase
  - Second Phase
- American
  - First Phase
  - Second Phase

Land Features & Preservation:
- 18th-Century Woodline
- 18th-Century Structures
- 18th-Century Roads
- 18th-Century Roads no longer in existence
- 18th-Century Fences
- Modern Roads
- Preserved by the American Battlefield Trust & other Partner Organizations
- Preserved by Historic Camden Foundation

© American Battlefield Trust. Map prepared by Steven Stanley. The historic battlefield is shown alongside modern efforts to preserve this land. Maps are available for download for personal use only at www.battlefields.org/maps.

Updated October 2020.