

Salutes Fired and Ponderous Cheers
Given—Lunch at Exposition-Grounds—Features, Incidents, and Details.

MARCH THROUGH THE STREETS.
A Splendid Parade of Military and Veterans Viewed by an Enthusiastic Throng.

There was an unusually large crowd of victors in the city and as their number were greatly augmented by the military and veterans from various portions of the State, the streets were thronged from early morn till late at night. The hotels were

The Grays (Captain C. Gray Boesieux, with Lieutenants Garrison and Goode and nine commissioned officers. Thirty-five private were in line, making a total rank and file of fifty-six men.

Captain Frank Cunningham commanded the Walker Light Guard (Company B) and his commissioned officer was Lieutenant J. J. Harvey. Lieutenant William B. B. was assigned to duty as adjutant of the and caissons. Eighty of the gallant artillerymen were in line, and as they marched in the procession, amid the heavy, rumbling sound of the cannon, there was something truly marvellous in their appearance. Captain John A. Hutcheson commanded the Howitzers, and his lieutenants were W. A. Barratt, T. H. Starke, and U. W. McFarlane.

The Grimes Battery of Portsmouth (Battery C), a recently organized company, vied with the soldiers in eagerness of appearance and heroically demeanor. They were commanded by Captain George W. McDaniel and Lieutenants E. K. Warren and W. K. Goyle and paraded fourteen

Babney H. Maury, Dr. J. B. Newton,
 Mr. and Mrs. Bispham, Mr. John Purcell,
 Mrs. McKinney, Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson,
 Miss Lelia Dinwiddie, Mrs. J. B. Pace, Mr.
 McIntosh, Miss McIntosh, Mrs. McIntosh.

Stewart. The party embraced about 100 members of the society.

General Stewart's staff consisted of Captain Wingfield Peters, Captain McHorney Howard, Major N. V. Randolph, and Mr. S. W. Travers. The two latter were kindly designated for this duty by order of General Beth. These staff officers, who were all mounted, rendered very efficient services to General Stewart, and it was through their aid and the kindness of Captain Elliot and Major Brander that the Marylanders, who arrived after the column started, were able to get their position in the line.

Among the prominent Marylanders who

Just beyond the monument was a large number of covered wagons, containing seats, which were in waiting for the procession. They had been provided for the veterans, and at this point those who had become fatigued took seats in these wagons, riding the remainder of the way to the grounds.

After reaching the monument the infantry took the old Burnings road to the rear, while the remaining riflemen and

simpl
 casion
 The friend
 mand

and, whose sacrifice has made duty we thus day commemorate. Comfort us that mourn, strengthen the weak, raise up the fallen, and save the perishing. We ask all in the name of Thy dear Son, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE ORATOR INTRODUCED.

Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, who entered the Confederate army as a private in the nineteenth Virginia, General Hill's old regiment, and who is known throughout the length and breadth of the Southland for his devotion to the southern cause and his patriotic labors, introduced the order of the admiration excited by the spontaneous pouring of the sorrow of a whole people the loss of their loved and faithful Mr. Dad. These words were all spoken at Williamsport later than on that day it would have been better for his re fame and better for the country if it had more that was connected with his life and his death. He was not unjust to his fellow countrymen. He said: "I have been a

Lieutenant-Colonel and intimate of A. P. Hill, his successor in command of the old Thirteenth Virginia Regiment.

THE HILL MONUMENT.

ty of the gallant artillery, and as they marched amid the heavy, rumbling cannon, there was martial in their appearance. A. Hutcheson commander, and his lieutenants, T. H. Starke, and C. J. of Portsmouth (Battery) organized company. Officers in neatness of appearance. They were led by Captain George W. and paraded fourteen

Stewart. The party embraced about 100 members of the society.

General Stewart's staff consisted of Captain Wingfield Peters, Captain McHorney Howard, Major N. V. Randolph, and Mr. S. W. Travers. The two latter were kindly designated for this duty by order of General Beth. These staff officers, who were all mounted, rendered very efficient services to General Stewart, and it was through their aid and the kindness of Captain Elliot and Major Brander that the Marylanders, who arrived after the column started, were able to get their position in the line.

Among the prominent Marylanders who

Just beyond the monument was a large number of covered wagons, containing seats, which were in waiting for the procession. They had been provided for the veterans, and at this point those who had become fatigued took seats in these wagons, riding the remainder of the way to the grounds.

After reaching the monument the infantry took the old Burnings road to the rear, while the remaining riflemen and

and, whose sacrifice has made duty we thus day commemorate. Comfort us that mourn, strengthen the weak, raise up the fallen, and save the perishing. We ask all in the name of Thy dear Son, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE ORATOR INTRODUCED.

Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, who entered the Confederate army as a private in the nineteenth Virginia, General Hill's old regiment, and who is known throughout the length and breadth of the Southland for his devotion to the southern cause and his patriotic labors, introduced the order of the admiration excited by the spontaneous pouring of the sorrow of a whole people the loss of their loved and faithful Mr. Dad. These words were all spoken at Williamsport later than on that day it would have been better for his re fame and better for the country if it had more that was connected with his life and his death. He was not unjust to his fellow countrymen. He said: "I have been a