

GOAL 1 | LESSON PLAN | MIDDLE SCHOOL

Pre-1860: Disunion

GRADES: Middle School

APPROXIMATE LENGTH OF TIME: Approximately 70 min. (not including the final essay)

GOAL: Students will be able to identify and discuss events that contributed to the outbreak of the American Civil War.

OBJECTIVES:

1. Students will be able to compare the economies of the Northern and Southern states.
2. Students will be able to chronologically organize and summarize major events contributing to the outbreak of the American Civil War.
3. Students will be able to discuss compromises attempted prior to the Civil War.

COMMON CORE:

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.6-8.1

Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources.

NCSS STANDARDS FOR SOCIAL STUDIES:

- 1—Culture
- 2—Time, Continuity, and Change
- 3—People, Places, and Environment
- 5—Individuals, Groups, and Institutions
- 6—Power, Authority, and Governance
- 10—Civic, Ideals, and Practices

MATERIALS:

1. Entrance Pass
2. “An Overview of the American Civil War”
3. Disunion Timeline Information Cards
4. Disunion Timeline Worksheet

5. Culture and Economies Chart
6. Culture and Economies Worksheet
7. Essay

ANTICIPATORY SET/HOOK

1. Hand out the Entrance Pass and define “Civil War.”
2. Read the first three paragraphs of James McPherson’s “An Overview of the American Civil War” together as a class.
3. As a large group complete the entrance pass.

PROCEDURE:

Activity 1

1. View the Westward Expansion map.
2. Have your students read the Missouri Compromise article.

Activity 2

1. Hand out the Disunion Timeline Information Cards. Read over the events and discuss as a group.
2. Hand out the Disunion Timeline Worksheet. Have students work in pairs to complete the worksheet.
3. Watch The War Between the States In4 until the 2:19 mark.
4. Watch Kansas in the Civil War until the 1:00 mark.

Activity 3

1. Hand out the Culture and Economies Charts; review the information with your students. Explain that while we cannot identify what every single person thought or did at the time, these charts (created from the 1860 census) help us create a snapshot of what the country was like.
2. Hand out the Culture and Economies Worksheet, and have students complete independently.

Activity 4

1. Watch The Coming of the War In4.
2. Watch the 1861 Animated Map until the 3:48 mark.

CLOSURE:

Discuss and begin the Essay.

Note: Students may want to or need to do extra research on the compromises they choose. The original documents can be found on Battlefields.org and summaries are available from other institutions and nonprofits such as the National Archives, the Library of Congress, Universities (UVA, Virginia Tech, and Gettysburg College), and the National Park Service to name a few. Please see the end of this document for more articles for students and teachers.

ASSESSMENT IN THIS LESSON:

1. Informal assessment through class discussion related to the Disunion Timeline Information Cards
2. Completed Disunion Timeline Worksheet
3. Completed Culture and Economies Worksheet
4. Essay

ADDITIONAL TEACHER AND STUDENT RESOURCES:

These resources can help you prepare for teaching this unit and can also help students with their essays and their understanding of the subject matter.

1. Glossary of 18th and 19th Century Political Terms
2. Glossary of Civil War Terms
3. National Archives Document Analysis Worksheets

A Brief Overview of the American Civil War: A Defining Time in Our Nation's History

By: Dr. James McPherson

The Civil War is the central event in America's historical consciousness. While the Revolution of 1776-1783 created the United States, the Civil War of 1861-1865 determined what kind of nation it would be. The war resolved two fundamental questions left unresolved by the revolution: whether the United States was to be a dissolvable confederation of sovereign states or an indivisible nation with a sovereign national government; and whether this nation, born of a declaration that all men were created with an equal right to liberty, would continue to exist as the largest slaveholding country in the world.

Northern victory in the war preserved the United States as one nation and ended the institution of slavery that had divided the country from its beginning. But these achievements came at the cost of 625,000 lives--nearly as many American soldiers as died in all the other wars in which this country has fought combined. The American Civil War was the largest and most destructive conflict in the Western world between the end of the Napoleonic Wars in 1815 and the onset of World War I in 1914.

The Civil War started because of uncompromising differences between the free and slave states over the power of the national government to prohibit slavery in the territories that had not yet become states. When Abraham Lincoln won election in 1860 as the first Republican president on a platform pledging to keep slavery out of the territories, seven slave states in the deep South seceded and formed a new nation, the Confederate States of America. The incoming Lincoln administration and most of the Northern people refused to recognize the legitimacy of secession. They feared that it would discredit democracy and create a fatal precedent that would eventually fragment the no-longer United States into several small, squabbling countries.

The event that triggered war came at Fort Sumter in Charleston Bay on April 12, 1861. Claiming this United States fort as their own, the Confederate army on that day opened fire on the federal garrison and forced it to lower the American flag in surrender. Lincoln called out the militia to suppress this "insurrection." Four more slave states seceded and joined the Confederacy. By the end of 1861 nearly a million armed men confronted each other along a line stretching 1200 miles from Virginia to Missouri. Several battles had already taken place--near Manassas Junction in Virginia, in the mountains of western Virginia where Union victories paved the way for creation of the new state of West Virginia, at Wilson's Creek in Missouri, at Cape Hatteras in North Carolina, and at Port Royal in South Carolina where the Union navy established a base for a blockade to shut off the Confederacy's access to the outside world.

But the real fighting began in 1862. Huge battles like Shiloh in Tennessee, Gaines' Mill, Second Manassas, and Fredericksburg in Virginia, and Antietam in Maryland foreshadowed even bigger campaigns and battles in subsequent years, from Gettysburg in Pennsylvania to Vicksburg on the Mississippi to Chickamauga and Atlanta in Georgia. By 1864 the original Northern goal of a limited war to restore the Union had given way to a new strategy of "total war" to destroy the Old South and its basic institution of slavery and to give the restored Union a "new birth of freedom," as President Lincoln put it in his address at Gettysburg to dedicate a cemetery for Union soldiers killed in the battle there.

For three long years, from 1862 to 1865, Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia staved off invasions and attacks by the Union Army of the Potomac commanded by a series of ineffective generals until Ulysses S. Grant came to Virginia from the Western theater to become general in chief of all Union armies in 1864. After bloody battles at places with names like The Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, and Petersburg, Grant finally brought Lee to bay at Appomattox in April 1865. In the meantime, Union armies and river fleets in the theater of war comprising the slave states west of the Appalachian Mountain chain won a long series of victories over Confederate armies commanded by hapless or unlucky Confederate generals. In 1864-1865 General William Tecumseh Sherman led his army deep into the Confederate heartland of Georgia and South Carolina, destroying their economic infrastructure while General George Thomas virtually destroyed the Confederacy's Army of Tennessee at the battle of Nashville.

By the spring of 1865 all the principal Confederate armies surrendered, and when Union cavalry captured the fleeing Confederate President Jefferson Davis in Georgia on May 10, 1865, resistance collapsed and the war ended. The long, painful process of rebuilding a united nation free of slavery began.

PRE 1860 – DISUNION TIMELINE CARDS

Missouri Compromise: (1820)

In 1818, Missouri sought admission to the Union as a slave-holding state. After two years of bitter debate, the Missouri Compromise was agreed upon. This compromise admitted Missouri to the Union as a slave state and admitted Maine as a free state to maintain the balance in the Senate. The compromise prohibited slavery north of latitude 36° 30' in the Louisiana Purchase territory, with the exception of Missouri, and allowed it south of that line.

Tariff of 1828: (1828)

Congress passed the Tariff of 1828, known as the “Tariff of Abominations.” The tariff earned this nickname because it made foreign products expensive for people to buy, especially if they did not have industry in their region producing similar items. This was the case in the South, which mainly produced raw materials. The tariff also meant less money went to foreign countries, which then bought fewer raw materials, such as cotton, from the South.

Nat Turner’s Rebellion (1831)

Nat Turner, a slave, along with about 60 other slaves led a violent rebellion that resulted in the deaths of more than 50 Virginians. Nat and many others were executed for their part, or suspected part, in the revolt. Nat Turner’s Rebellion struck long-term fear in the hearts of slave owners, which caused them to place new restrictions on slaves and prompted a national debate about the “slavery question.”

The Tariff of 1832

Also known as the Compromise Tariff, the Tariff of 1832 was passed by Congress in an attempt to appease the South after the Tariff of 1828. Unsatisfied, John C. Calhoun resigned from the vice presidency and South Carolina issued an Ordinance of Nullification, which declared both tariffs unconstitutional and would not be honored within the sovereign state of South Carolina. President Andrew Jackson issued his Proclamation Regarding Nullification, explaining its unconstitutionality and promising to use military force, if necessary. South Carolina repealed the Ordinance of Nullification after a new tariff was passed.

Compromise of 1850

Disagreements erupted over whether land acquired from Mexico after the Mexican-American War would become slave or free states. The compromise admitted California as a free state, and the inhabitants of the territories of New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona, and Utah would be allowed to decide whether or not to permit slavery in their territories when they applied for statehood. The compromise included the Fugitive Slave Act, which denied captured blacks legal power to prove their freedom and required U.S. marshals and deputies to help slave owners capture their property. The compromise also ended the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852)

Published in response to the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850, the book sold two million copies worldwide within two years of being published. After the Bible, Uncle Tom's Cabin was the highest selling book of the 19th century. President Lincoln read Uncle Tom's Cabin before announcing the Emancipation Proclamation in 1862, and when he met Stowe, he exclaimed, "So this is the little woman who started this great war!"

Kansas-Nebraska Act (1854)

This act repealed the Missouri Compromise, which said that states north of the latitude 36° 30' would be free states. This allowed settlers in the territories of Kansas and Nebraska to decide, through popular sovereignty, whether they would allow slavery within their borders when they applied for statehood. The Kansas-Nebraska Act split the Democratic Party and virtually destroyed the Whig Party. The northern Whigs joined the antislavery Democrats to form the Republican

“Bleeding Kansas” (1856)

Disagreements between Free Soilers (anti-slavery faction) and proslavery advocates over whether slavery should be allowed in Kansas led to violence. An abolitionist by the name of John Brown, who will emerge again later, became famous for his part in the bloodshed at Pottawatomie Creek.

Dred Scott Decision (1857)

Dred Scott, a slave, sued for his freedom on the grounds that since his master had taken him to live in free territories, he should be free. The controversial decision of the U.S. Supreme Court stated that, no slave or descendant of a slave could be a U.S. citizen. As a non-citizen and a slave viewed as property, Scott was not entitled to file suit. The Court also ruled that Congress had no power to exclude slavery from the territories; therefore, the Missouri Compromise and other legislation limiting slavery were unconstitutional.

Lincoln-Douglas Debates (1858)

These debates between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas, for a seat in the United States Senate representing Illinois, garnered national attention. Lincoln and Douglas, the latter a sponsor of the Kansas-Nebraska Act, hashed out the issue of slavery. Although Lincoln did not win the seat, the debates forged Lincoln into a prominent national figure and solidified his Republican Party's antislavery platform.

John Brown's Raid (1859)

In October of 1859, John Brown and 22 other men raided the town and United States arsenal at Harpers Ferry, Virginia (today West Virginia), hoping to arm and free slaves, which would lead to a slave revolt. Brown and his raiders captured many of the town's most important citizens and held them hostage. Within 24 hours, Brown was captured and later convicted of treason, murder, and conspiracy to incite slave rebellion. He was hanged that December. Once again Southerners called into question their safety and many were left wondering if Brown was a martyr or terrorist.

Culture and Economies Worksheet

Place an “X” in the box for the region that fulfills the question. Use your Culture and Economies Charts to help you.

QUESTION	NORTH	SOUTH
1. Which region had greater railroad mileage?
2. Which region had larger farm acreage?
3. Which region had greater value of exports?
4. Which region had a larger population?
5. Which region had greater wealth?
6. Which region had greater iron/steel production?
7. Which region had a greater number of factories?
8. Which region had greater wealth?

Fill in the following blanks with either North or South.

1. Which region had large plantations and few factories? _____
2. Which region produced large amounts of textiles and had an economy based on manufacturing? _____
3. Which region had a greater number of slaves? _____
4. Which region had a short winter that allowed farmers to have a longer growing season? _____
5. Which region had a larger population? _____

What region seems to have an advantage with size of population and wealth?

What direction does the United States seem to be moving in? Is agriculture the primary economy or is industry on the rise?

What concerns might the population of the Southern region have in light of the trend?

Why would Southern states support new states entering as slave states?

Disunion Essay

Provide two examples of compromises that were instituted before the outbreak of the Civil War.

Be sure to:

- Summarize each compromise.
- Explain why each compromise was unsuccessful or later changed.
- Include how regional differences (economics, culture, industry) affected the development and success of each compromise.
