Upon hearing that his rear guard was under attack, Lord Charles Cornwallis turned his 1st Division around and head back to Monmouth Court House.

Realizing that he wasn’t facing 600 troops as thought but over 6,000 troops, Lee breaks off the fighting and retreats.

WASHINGTON
(~11,000 troops)

LEE
(~800 troops)

CORNWALLIS
(~5,000 troops)

CLINTON
(~13,000 troops)

WASHINGTON's major force arriving.

Perrine’s Hill

Lee’s

WASHINGTON

Lee

CORNWALLIS

CLINTON

Lee

Perrine’s Hill

Washington’s

major force arriving.

Perrine

1

Upon hearing that his rear guard was under attack, Lord Charles Cornwallis turned his 1st Division around and head back to Monmouth Court House.

2

Realizing that he wasn’t facing 600 troops as thought but over 6,000 troops, Lee breaks off the fighting and retreats.

3

Needing time to set up a defensive line, Maj. Gen. George Washington orders Lee to delay the British.